

Logical Clinical Problem Solving

with Jill Maddison & David Church

7-9 April

Veterinary Science Conference Centre,
University of Sydney

SPEAKERS

Dr Jill Maddison BVSc Dip Vet Clin Stud PhD FACVSc

Jill graduated from the University of Sydney in 1978. She completed an internship at the University of Sydney in 1979, spent 18 months in full time private practice, and then completed a residency in small animal medicine at the University of Guelph, Canada. She returned to Australia and completed a PhD on the neurochemistry of hepatic encephalopathy at the University of Sydney. She was a senior tutor and clinician in the Department of Veterinary Clinical Sciences from 1987, and from 1990-2000, was a senior lecturer in the Department of Pharmacology. During this time she also worked in general and specialist veterinary practice and was a consultant for a veterinary clinical pathology lab. In 2000 she became the Director of the Veterinary Science Foundation at the University of Sydney.

Jill moved to the United Kingdom with her family in April 2001. From 2002 she was a veterinary clinician and lecturer at the Royal Veterinary College, London, based at the college's first opinion practice, the Beaumont Animals' Hospital, and a Fellow at Girton College, Cambridge where she tutored in pharmacology. In September 2005 she became the director of professional development and head of the CPD Unit at the RVC-this unit coordinates the continuing education courses offered to practitioners by the RVC. Her particular areas of interest are problem-based clinical reasoning in small animal medicine and clinical pharmacology. She is the senior editor of Small Animal Clinical Pharmacology, the 2nd edition of which was published in 2008.

Professor David Church BVSc PhD MACVSc MRCVS

David graduated with a BVSc from The University of Sydney in 1975. After graduating he was appointed as a small animal clinical instructor at The University of Sydney and then enrolled in a PhD programme in the Faculty of Medicine looking at various aspects of the pathophysiology of diabetes mellitus, completing this in 1983.

David was appointed as Lecturer in Small Animal Medicine at The University of Sydney in 1983, promoted to Senior Lecturer in 1991 and Associate Professor in 1999. David obtained membership (small animal medicine) of the Australian College of Veterinary Scientists in 1990, and was Hospital Director of The University Veterinary Centre from 1991 until his departure in 2001 to take up the Chair of Small Animal Studies at the Royal Veterinary College. Soon after his arrival, at the Royal Veterinary College, The Department of Small Animal Medicine and Surgery and the Department of Farm Animal and Equine Medicine and Surgery merged to form the Department of Veterinary Clinical Sciences. David was Head of the new department until August, 2009 and has recently been appointed to Vice Principal (Academic and Clinical Affairs) at the Royal Veterinary College and he is looking forward to the challenges that this new position presents.

David is the author of numerous scientific articles, book chapters and is joint editor of the soon to be released textbook "Small Animal Clinical Pharmacology". He recently received the Betts Prize alongside Lynne Hill for establishing VCS and the QMH as a powerhouse of veterinary clinical service, training and education.
